REPORT CHILD MAY BE RETURNED SOON PREMIER ASSAULTED, GOVERNMENT OFFICES WRECKED BY RIOTERS

OPTIMISM IS STILL PREVAILING DUE TO RENEWED ACTIVITY

Posses Seek Couple With Baby; Hope Is Apparent

HOPEWELL, N. J., April 6.—Renewed activity and a chain of hope-inspiring events during the past twenty-four hours led to strengthened belief today that the kidnaped son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh would be returned soon.

No actual basis for such a belief, however, was advanced by investigators working with the Lindbergh family.

The incidents which increased optimism here included:

Enforcement by state troopers of a rule prohibiting newspapermen from parking cars on Werts-ville Road after several days of apparent indifference. This may be the result of a rapidly growing force of newsmen here.

The Lindbergh home, for the second night, was brilliantly lighted with police apparently restlessly active.

Reports that milk deliveries, discontinued after the kidnaping, had been resumed. It was pointed out that expectant mothers also drink certain grades of milk.

Statement by Mrs. H. Dobson-Peacock, wife of the Norfolk pastor who believes he is serving as a negotiator in the kidnaping, that "everyone would let the negotiators alone, everything would be over and settled in twenty-four hours."

Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf left unanswered a press question as to whether any definite information had been received from any reliable source indicating that the baby, who was taken from his crib March 1, was likely to be returned soon.

Following Col. Lindbergh's two flights over Vineyard Sound, off the Massachusetts coast Sunday and Monday, five coast guard boats were patrolling the water about Martha's Vineyard, presumably in connection with efforts to establish contact with the kidnapers.

The coast guard activity indicated some craft was expected in from the sea. Late yesterday afternoon the five craft separated.

A destroyer steamed out to sea in the same direction from which it had appeared about noon. A cutter and three patrol boats remained off shore.

During the afternoon a Sikorsky amphibian plane flew low over Nashawena Island. It resembled the ship which landed at Cuttyhunk Sunday with four men.

Since Lindbergh was known to have been at his estate fighting a brush fire nearby during the afternoon, observers speculated on the theory that the plane might have been chartered by John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk, Va., shipbuilder, who has been negotiating with persons he believes are the kidnapers.

Curtis, who has been away from his home since Friday night, had not returned late last night, although Mrs. Curtis, who disappeared with her husband, was back in Norfolk yesterday.

Again the mysterious message signed "Jafise" appeared in two New York newspapers, its contents, if accepted as being an authentic communication between the kidnapers and those negotiating for the baby's return, indicated some hitch in the proceedings.

It said: "What is wrong? Have you crossed me? Please better directions, Jafise."

WAQUOIT, Mass., April 6.—A man and a woman with a baby carriage, who reportedly were landed by a mysterious white yacht near this Cape Cod village late last night, were sought by posses today.

The report that the couple had disappeared in the woods between here and Mashpee, made to police by two local fishermen, created considerable excitement in this section, only a few miles from where a house search for clues in the Lindbergh baby kidnaping was conducted yesterday.

BOSTWICK OUSTER UPHELD BY COURT

COLUMBUS, O., April 6.—Ouster of Homer Z. Bostwick, as probate judge of Franklin County, was upheld by the Ohio supreme court today.

Bostwick was removed from office Sept. 22 by a special court composed of Judges Walter D. Jones, Miami County, who presided; James C. Ogilvie, Carroll County; and William P. Vaughn, Morrow County. He was charged with misfeasance and malfeasance in office in alleged threats of prosecution against Opal Eversole to whom he assertedly had given a valuable ring which she refused to return to him.

Miss Frances Bosworth, of Evanston, Ill., and Dr. Trevor Stamp, well known London physician, pose for the cameraman at the bride's home in the Chicago suburb following their wedding, Tuesday. They will live in England.

STUDENT STRIKERS FIGHT WITH OTHERS ON CAMPUS AT COLUMBIA

NEW YORK, April 6.—Hostilities broke out on the Columbia University campus today as the one-day strike in protest against the expulsion of Reed Harris, editor of the Spectator, undergraduate daily, went into effect.

Attempts by a group of strike pickets to cover the mouth of the statue of Alma Mater with black crepe to symbolize "gag-rule" at Columbia, resulted in a spirited battle between a band of strikers and members of the so-called football element, which Harris had criticized editorially.

Hundreds of students walked about the campus, wearing in their lapels pastebare tags bearing the legend: "On Strike," while scores carried strike banners. About 130 student pickets patrolled the doors of all academic halls to prevent students from entering classrooms.

Meanwhile, on the library steps before the statue of Alma Mater, Arthur Goldschmidt, a senior, has argued a crowd which included several of the anti-strike contingent. During his declamation on the rights of free speech and free press, one particularly enthusiastic student started shouting at the statue with a long piece of black crepe.

Benn Shelley Wood, an athlete grabbed one end of the crepe. One of the strikers, Bernard Simon, went to the rescue and engaged Wood in a tug of war for the crepe. Finally the two slipped and tumbled down the library steps.

At this point, Harold Westwood, law school student, and one of the leaders of the strike, leaped into the fray. It was then the football crowd closed in. A spirited fist fight followed and ended with the football crowd dragging Westwood by his clothes and his face bruised and bleeding, 400 feet toward the gymnasium. Suddenly several men, later revealed to have been plain clothes police, rushed in and saved Westwood.

ROOSEVELT VICTOR IN DELEGATE SCRAP
IN TWO PRIMARIES

NEW YORK AND WISCONSIN
Are Pledged To Governor

ALBANY, N. Y., April 6.—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt won over former Governor Alfred E. Smith in the only contest of general interest in the New York state primary yesterday.

This victory came in the 41st congressional district, Buffalo, in a fight for delegates to the Democratic national convention between George J. Zimmerman, county leader, and Anthony J. Wolkowick, both favoring nomination of Governor Roosevelt, and Gerhard Lang, Jr., and Philip A. Sullivan, pledged to Smith.

Complete returns from 120 election districts gave Zimmerman 5,341, and Lang, his leading opponent, 5,501. Wolkowick 5,411, Sullivan 1,596.

The contest in this district was the only one for delegates to the Democratic national convention in the state.

There were contests in two congressional districts for delegates to the Republican national convention, and in each the organization candidates won easily.

In the twentieth congressional district, Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills and Herbert N. Straus were opposed by Simon D. Beckerman and Dr. Bernard Lazarus, supporters of former Senator Joseph I. France, Mills and Straus, strong Hoover supporters, won by overwhelming majorities.

The complete vote gave Mills 1,833, Straus 1,865, while Lazarus polled 105 and Beckerman 102.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 6.—Wisconsin's twenty-six delegates to the Democratic national convention at Chicago in June were placed solidly behind Gov. Frank D. Roosevelt of New York for president in returns from Tuesday's election compiled today.

LaFollette Republicans, backing Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska for president in opposition to President Hoover, held a bare majority of their party's twenty-seven delegates.

RACIAL DIFFERENCES EMBITTER EFFORTS TO CHOOSE MURDER JURY

Darrow Attempts To Avoid Mixtures In Filling Box

HONOLULU, T. H., April 6.—Sharp drawn racial lines embittered the honor slaying trial of four Americans today as the defense used peremptory challenges to obtain a jury of whites while prosecutors favored Orientals and half-castes.

Clarence Darrow, aged and shrewd chief defense counsel who had denied such animosities existed among the mixtures of Hawaii's "melting pot" found himself temporarily hested as the third day's hearing began with only five whites in the list of twelve prospective jurors.

Mrs. Granville Roland Fortescue, gray haired New York and Washington socialite, nervously watched Darrow's struggle to free her and three men co-defendants on charges they killed Joe Kahahawai, young Hawaiian.

Apprehensive that smoldering hates were masked by bland faces, Darrow excused one half-caste after another and occasionally a Japanese or Chinese with them.

Prosecutor John Kelley matched Darrow's maneuvers by excusing the whites and trying to retain the racial brothers of the slaying victim.

In the jury box awaiting arrival of Circuit Judge Charles S. Davis were Kam Tai Lee and Kenneth Sun Chuan, Chinese; Charles Kuo and Edward Gooses, Chinese-Hawaiians; Hisaka Imada, Japanese; Charles Akana, Hawaiian; Kenneth R. Bankston, R. H. Eveith, Shaford Waterhouse, William R. Chellard, Charles H. Strohm, white, and Sam J. Lyle, part Hawaiian.

Many peremptory challenges remained to both prosecution and defense before approval of a jury and the territory starts evidence to support charges Mrs. Fortescue, her son-in-law, L. Thomas R. Massie, and E. J. Lord and Albert O. Jones, navy enlisted men, killed Kahahawai to avenge an attack on Mrs. Thalia Fortescue Massie.

Mrs. Massie, daughter of Mrs. Fortescue and bride of the lieutenant, was attacked last September by a gang of island hoodlums. Five natives and half-castes, Kahahawai among them, were tried on charges but the jury disagreed.

Darrow, fighting to keep the attack case uppermost in the minds of veniremen, had difficulty understanding the broken English of many prospects.

William Huihui, Hawaiian, was excused when he blurted out he thought the defendants "ought to be shot."

Jones and Lord, the enlisted men, laughed as the native left the box. The courtroom jolted them.

GLORIA SWANSON IS HAPPY OVER
NEW BABY

LONDON, April 6.—Gloria Swanson and Michael Farmer received congratulations from all over the world today on the birth of a blue-eyed, curly haired daughter who cried so lustily that Miss Swanson remarked, "Well, she seems wired for sound."

The daughter was born late yesterday. She weighed seven pounds and two ounces.

Farmer had rented a house in Farm Street, not far from Park Lane, for the happy event.

When farmer was admitted to see his child for the first time he took the baby in his arms, paraded up and down the bedroom, and shouted, "She's marvelous, Gloria!"

"We are both very happy," Farmer said. "I am in a complete daze. Our plans are indefinite but we will remain here until late in August and then visit the south of France before proceeding to Hollywood."

Miss Swanson married Farmer after she was divorced from the Marquis de la Palaise de la Coudraye. She has one other daughter, named Gloria, and an adopted son.

FOUND DEAD IN BUS

TOLEDO, O., April 6.—Andrew Danko, 32, Youngstown, O., passenger in a bus bound for Chicago, was found dead in the bus when it arrived in Toledo early today.

The man was found dead in the rear of the bus by Joe Threlkeld, porter, Chicago, who told police Danko boarded the bus at the station in Cleveland.

ESCAPES MASSACRE

Malquidez Espinosa, 59-year-old Mexican farmer, has been repeatedly questioned by police in connection with the massacre of seven members of his family by bandits who raided the Espinosa ranch house near Las Curces, N. M. Presumably looking for money, the bandits shot and killed Espinosa's wife and six children in cold blood when Espinosa said he had none. He himself escaped with his life by pretending he had been shot.

Authorities and bank officials of both Greene and Clark Counties are investigating his activities in other cities.

Following his arrest and questioning, Jackson is said to have revealed details to a bad check "racket" in which he opened accounts of various banks by depositing worthless checks.

Jackson, authorities declared Wednesday, defrauded the Xenia National Bank of $200 through manipulation of an account established on a worthless check.

Giving his name as "E. B. Johnson," the man opened an account with the Xenia bank two weeks ago, depositing $15, it is claimed.

He appeared at the bank again last Saturday with a check for $250, made payable to him by a man named "Stokes," drawn on a Tippecanoe City bank, and deposited it to his credit.

Monday morning, authorities say the man interviewed Cashier Wead at the bank and sought to withdraw $200, asserting he had bought a filling station on the Dayton-Xenia Pike, and needed the money.

The cashier told him the $250 check he had deposited the previous Saturday had not yet cleared the Tippecanoe City bank, but "Johnson" said the check was valid. He suggested that Mr. Wead call the Tipp City bank over long distance telephone to ascertain validity of the check, saying he would pay the toll charge.

The call was put through and Mr. Wead was told the $250 check was covered by funds on deposit. Thereupon the man was given $200 in change. Tuesday afternoon the Xenia bank was notified that the check was worthless.

The cashier, accompanied by Deputy Spahr, at once instituted a search for the check worker. They failed to find him at the address he had given, 504 Dayton Ave. They also failed to locate a reported filling station he had purchased along the pike.

Later in the afternoon the officer and the bank official went to Springfield and discovered the man they sought was under arrest in that city.

Jackson had $325 in cash in his possession when arrested. This money was attached by the Xenia bank and also by a Springfield bank which allegedly had been defrauded of $75 by Jackson in a similar manner.

Springfield police believe Jackson was linked with several other bogus check reports in that city. Mrs. Ann B. Bauer, Springfield, told authorities she cashed a worthless check for $34 for a man giving the name of "G. C. Powers." He had rented an apartment from her but disappeared before the check was returned from the bank as worthless.

Officials of The Radio Electric Store in that city disclosed that a man giving the name "Powers" bought a $148 radio several days ago, presenting a check, and that the same man returned to the store later and sought to have a $10 check cashed. Both checks were subsequently returned from a bank marked "no account" police learned.

PIQUA WINS LIGHT PLANT LEGAL FIGHT

PIQUA, O., April 6.—Plans for construction of a $700,000 municipal light plant here soared today with removal of a legal barrier to the project.

The court of appeals Tuesday sustained the dissolution of an injunction forbidding the city to sell bonds for the plant. Three taxpayers had filed the suit, contending the bonds were illegal in that they would raise the city's indebtedness beyond a legal limit and that they were issued for a dual purpose. Unless the case is carried to the supreme court by the complainants, sale of the bonds will proceed.

CONVICTION OF WOMAN IS UPHELD

COLUMBUS, O., April 6.—Conviction of Marguerite Clark Tidd, former clerk of the Portsmouth municipal court, on charges of embezzling public funds, was affirmed, in effect, today, by the state supreme court when it declined to review a decision by the appeals court of Scioto County.

The defendant, who was sentenced to the Marysville Reformatory for women, had served as clerk of the court since October 1, 1928. She was convicted in September, 1931.

MAN SOUGHT IN BANK FRAUD IS UNDER ARREST

Alleged Manipulator Of Checks Defrauds
Xenia Bank

George W. Jackson, 49, of 858 Webster St., Dayton, reputed author of a check manipulation scheme whereby banks in Xenia, Springfield, Tippecanoe City and Vandalia were victimized, was under arrest in Springfield Wednesday but was scheduled to be returned to Xenia for prosecution on a charge of defrauding the Xenia National Bank of $200.

A tentative charge of issuing a check without sufficient funds in a Springfield bank, on which the suspect was being held in the Clark County jail, following his arrest Tuesday, was expected to be withdrawn and the man turned over to Greene County authorities.

Jackson was taken into custody Tuesday afternoon at Springfield while Chief Deputy Sheriff Walton Spahr and R. O. Wead, cashier of the Xenia bank, were searching for him.

Authorities and bank officials of both Greene and Clark Counties are investigating his activities in other cities.

"LONE WOLF" HELD

Arrest of Donald Loftus, in Chicago, has unfolded an amazing story of a "gentleman" bank robber's career. Loftus confessed to holding up fourteen banks, single-handed, which netted him $100,000. The suave-mannered 30-year-old prisoner, who described himself as a "lone wolf," blamed his capture on women.

Relief Delay Sends 15,000
Into Revolt; Premier May Quit

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., April 6.—A mob of rioters ruled St. Johns today after storming parliament buildings, wrecking government offices, assaulting Prime Minister Sir Richard A. Squires, and threatening to tear Inspector General of Police Hutchings to pieces if they could lay hands on him.

The prime minister's life was saved, probably, by a Catholic priest defender.

"This is not a riot, it is revolution," Sir John R. Bennett, K. B. E., former acting premier and a veteran in service of the Newfoundland government, said as he watched the mob. It was throwing everything movable out of the parliament buildings, attempting to burn the buildings, and uprooting fences around the grounds to use pickets for weapons.

It was reported that Sir Richard had resigned but officials said it was impossible for the cabinet to resign until Sir Richard had been received by the governor, Sir John Middleton. It was understood, however, that members of the cabinet had advised the governor to ask for the prime minister's resignation.

The mob numbered about 15,000 at its greatest strength when a parade started from the Massette Theatre to the parliament buildings. Resolutions protesting against alleged blocking of popular demand for an investigation of the government were being considered there. The parade started in an orderly fashion. Witnesses said the rioting started when police assailed the crowd at the parliament buildings.

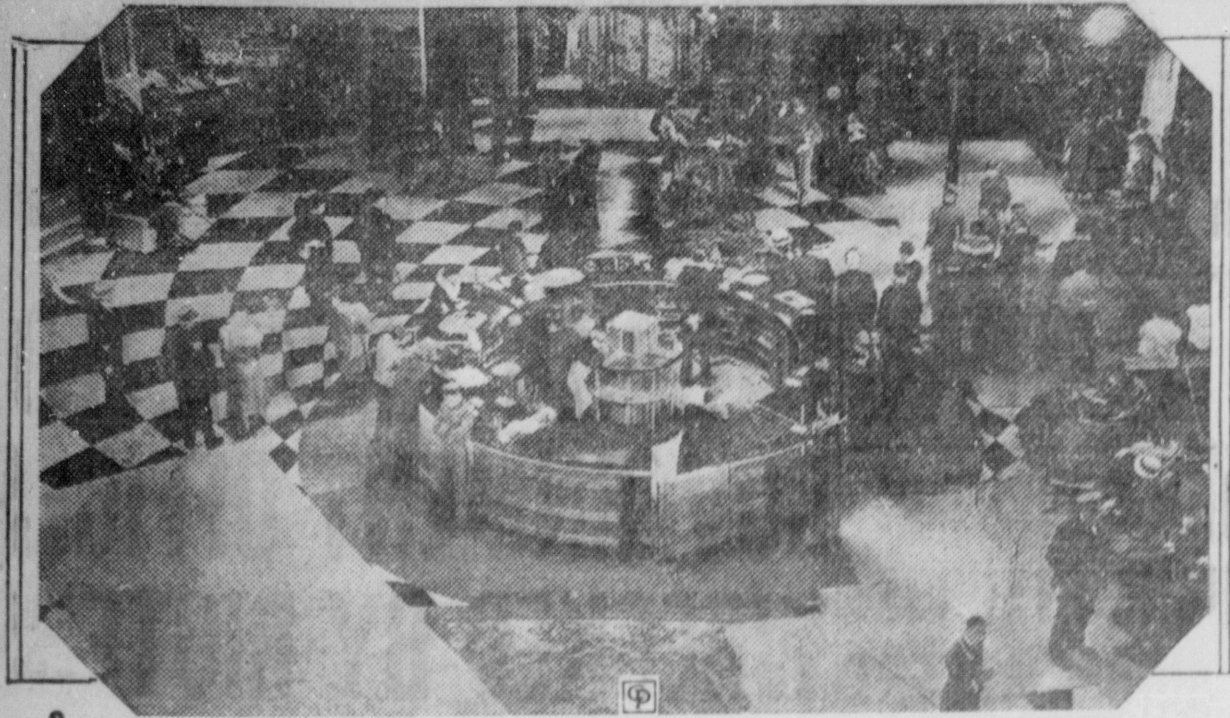

Sir William Coaker, minister without portfolio, was received by Governor Sir John Middleton and expressed his own intention and that of other members of the cabinet to resign as soon as they could get in touch with the prime minister. The rioting was the result of the acute economic situation here and was attributed by several prominent citizens on the delivery tactics of the government in dealing with public demands for relief.

AN UNUSUAL "SHOT" OF AN UNUSUAL MOVIE SET

Much of the action of "Grand Hotel" takes place in the lobby of a luxurious European hotel. It was decided, therefore, to make a huge circular set of a lobby, around which cameras could travel at will. There is even height, for the cameras look upward, too, and picture scenes on high stairways and in rooms looking down on the rotunda. Even Hollywood has been thrilled by it.

Almost Ready for First Trip Here

The new White Star motorship George, virtually a sister ship of the Britannic, is shown at Belfast, Ireland, where she was built and where she is being outfitted for her maiden voyage. The George is 680 feet long and will accommodate 1,600 passengers. She will sail for New York June 25th.

CO-EDS INVADE ENGINEERING FIELD Ringer for G. B. S.

Look to your laurels, men! Co-eds are invading the field of engineering. These four damsels are studying this hitherto strictly men's field at Purdue university, Lafayette, Ind. Kathleen Dunnion, Lafayette, Chicago, is hoping to give the feminine touch to mechanical engineering; Mary Esther Poorman, daughter of the professor of applied mechanics at Purdue, hopes to branch into architecture; Betty Henius, Chicago, goes in for chemical engineering, and Thelma McDonald, London, Ind., is a sophomore in civil engineering.

New Honor for Air Pioneer

Another honor was bestowed upon Orville Wright who, with his brother, Wilbur, was America's pioneer in aviation, when he was presented with an award by the Civitan International Club, at Dayton, Ohio, in recognition of his work. Cornet and Curl Coiffure

One of women's knottiest problems is how to arrange the crowning glory in the most becoming manner. Here, Dorothy Jordan, screen player, gives her version of the ideal coiffure. It is a combination of cornet braid and curls. The braid forms a halo around the head, coming down the left side over the ear and pinned back on the right side. The soft ringlet line softens the knaps of the neck and adds femininity to the face.

Parade in West Point Manner

Swinging jauntily along in the Easter fashion parade at Atlantic City, N. J., these four smart young women showed a definite preference for navy blue coats and brimless hats. The new high-backed shoes were the choice of three, light blue kid, trimmed with navy kid, being the material and color of their footwear. All four look as if they are fairly bubbling over with the glad spirit of Spring.

BOSTON BULL ADOPTS KITTENS

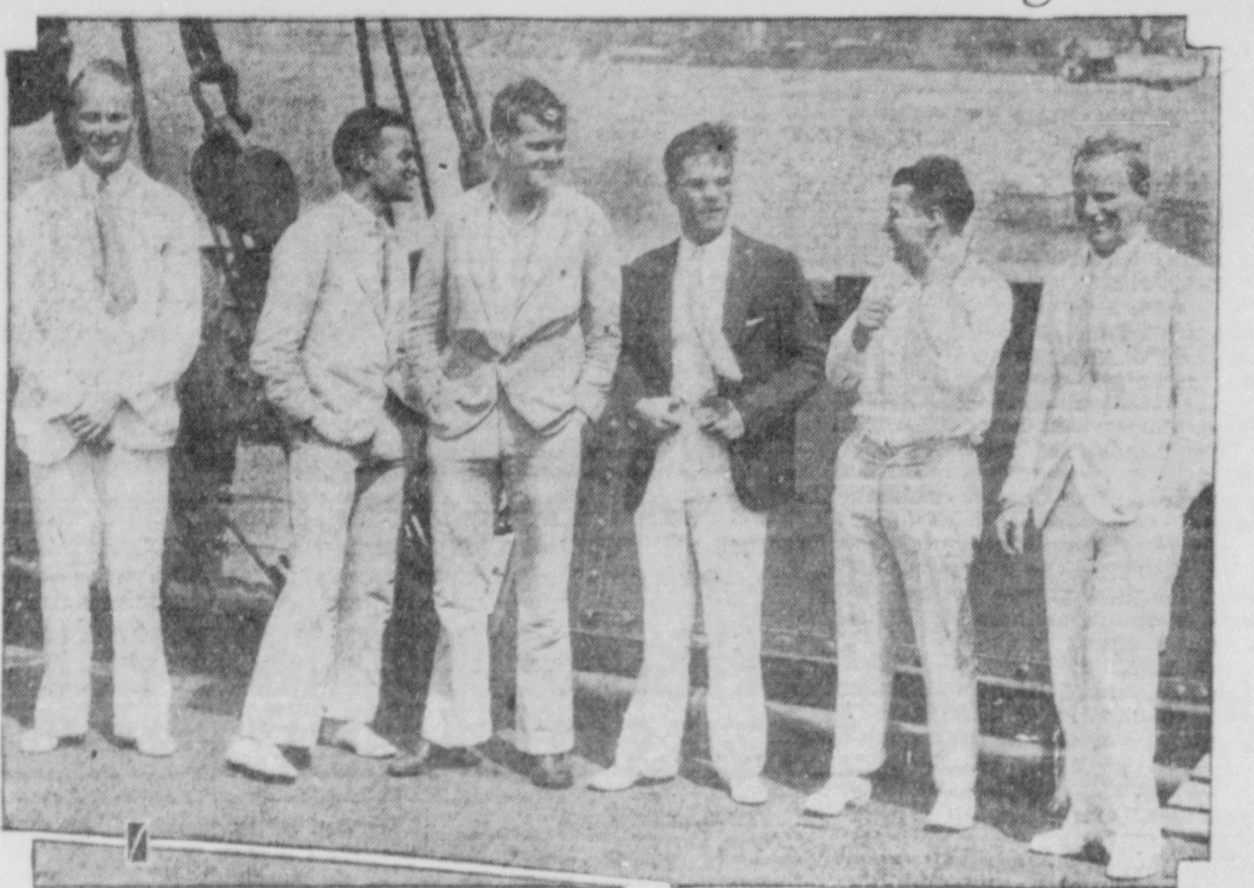

Mother Lindy Lou, of Washington, third of a famous family of bulls (of Boston) is a sympathetic canine. When she learned that the mother of four new kittens, which she had suddenly left home, she promptly adopted them. It was no easy matter, either, for she had quite a family of her own, born on Washington's birthday. Now she feeds both families, happy to be of service.

As Reds Rioted at the Capital

These spectacular pictures show some of the snappy action that took place in Washington, D. C., when Communists attempted to stage a demonstration in front of the Japanese Embassy to protest against Japanese aggression in China. Dozens of heads were cracked and scores of police uniforms were torn as cops had a free-for-all with men and women Reds. Photo at left shows a policeman trying to revive a girl rioter who was knocked completely out in the fracas. Center panel shows the scene in front of the Embassy as cops charged the threatening rioters with clubs swinging. Two of the forty arrested Reds are shown at left, proving a tough handful for the police.

Rich Youths Rescued From Sinking Yawl

Faces Noose

Facing the death penalty if convicted, Joseph Young, alias "Blackie," is shown as he nonchalantly puffed a cigarette in the Honolulu city jail after he was indicted in the newest criminal attack case to arouse the island. Young will be the first to be tried under the new territorial law which makes the crime for which he is indicted a capital offense.

Chinese Miss Lindy

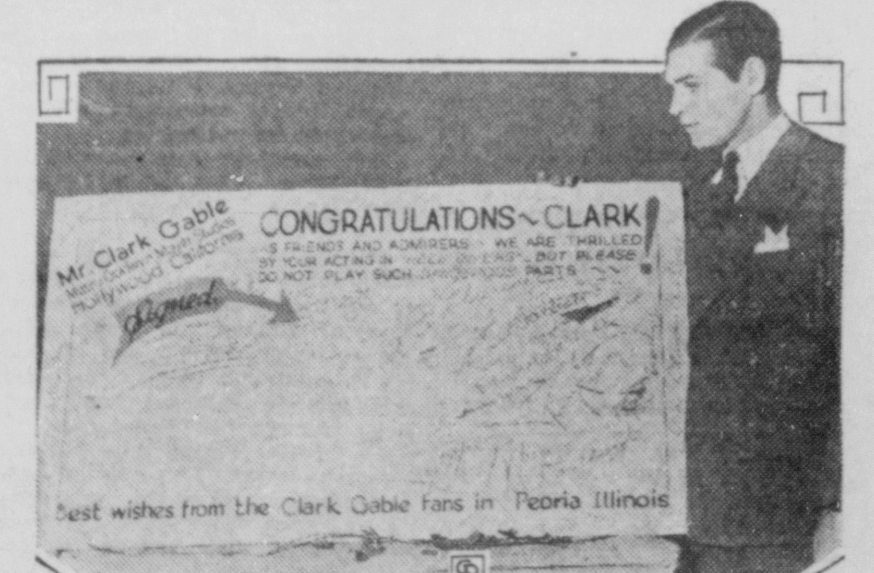

This American-born Chinese girl, Leah Hing, of Portland, Ore., has hopes of becoming the "Miss Lindbergh" of China after she has completed her aviation course under the able direction of Tex Rankin, well-known pilot-instructor. Leah says her people must develop much further in the field of aviation, because "a country sees only through the eyes of its fliers."

MILITARY QUEENS POSSESS DIGNITY

Here we have the two most beautiful co-eds at the University of Missouri, in Columbia, at least in the opinion of 1,500 members of the university's cadet corps. On the left is Miss Marietta Gates, of La Plata, Mo., chosen queen of the artillery. At the right is Miss Ruth Pollock of University City, Mo., queen of the infantry. These dignified appearing young women will reign over the military ball.

A FEW ADMIRERS OF CLARK GABLE

Members of the fair sex of Peoria, Ill., who think Clark Gable, screen star, is just about their ideal aren't in the least afraid to tell him so. Gable is shown here scanning a postcard, five feet by three, containing the names of his feminine admirers in Peoria.

MUSICAL-TEA IS

DELIGHTFUL AFFAIR.

Miss Juanita Rankin delightfully entertained pupils of her piano classes and their mothers at a musical-tea at her residence studio on E. Main St., Tuesday afternoon.

During the afternoon at various intervals the pupils played piano selections for the entertainment of the guests. Pupils appearing on the program were Charlotte Fudge, Barbara McClelland, Jim Stout IV, Wilma McClelland, Junior Buck, Nan and Charlotte McClelland, Beatrice Kuhn, Mildred LeVeck, Nellie McCalmont, Jack and Jean McClelland, Mary Ann Kingsbury and Julia Louise Bullock, this city and Margaret Haines and Helen Reeves, Jamestown.

At the close of the program the guests were invited to the dining room where tea was served. Miss Katherine Kingsbury and Miss Janet Frazer presided at the tea table and were assisted by Miss Eldora Baughn and Miss Mary Ann Kingsbury. The tea table was attractively decorated with green tapers and yellow tulips.

DEATH CLAIMS MRS. AGNES NASH, WIDOW OF ROBERT H. NASH

Mrs. Agnes G. Nash, 79, residing on the Hoop Road east of Xenia, and widow of Robert H. Nash, former Greene County commissioner, died suddenly at a local hospital Tuesday night at midnight. She had been in failing health three months suffering from a complication of diseases but as her condition was not thought serious her death came unexpected. She was removed to the hospital Monday.

Mrs. Nash was born in Xenia Twp. March 19, 1853, the daughter of William and Sarah G. (Carruthers) Watt, both natives of Scotland. She spent her entire life in Greene County and was married to Mr. Nash November 28, 1876. Mr. Nash, who died in 1917, was a member of the board of county commissioners at the time the present Court House was built.

Mrs. Nash was a member of the First U. P. Church and was active in several organizations of the church. She is survived by four sons: Herbert W. Dayton; Walter L. near Xenia; the Rev. Charles E. Nash, Caldwell, O.; and William H. who resides on the home farm. She also leaves nine grandchildren and one brother, James B. Watt, Xenia. A daughter died in infancy and the following brothers and sisters preceded her in death: Robert Watt and D. B. Watt, who died within the past year; the Rev. J. C. Watt, Mrs. David Cherry and Mrs. Warren Johnson.

Funeral services will be held at the First U. P. Church Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and burial will be made in Woodland Cemetery. Friends may call at the home Thursday afternoon after 1:30 o'clock.

HARRY FAUBER

Harry Fauber, 69, life-long resident of Xenia, died at the Greene County Infirmary, Tuesday afternoon. Death was caused by asthma and complications.

Mr. Fauber is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary Fauber. He was the last member of his immediate family. Funeral services will be held at the infirmary chapel Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock and burial will be made in Woodland Cemetery. Friends may call at the Need Funeral Home W. Market St., any time Wednesday evening.

MRS. SEVELLA COY

Mrs. Sevela P. Coy, 68, widow of Valentine Coy, died at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Hart, Stone Road, Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. She had been ill several years suffering from heart trouble. Mrs. Coy had spent her entire life in Beaver Creek Twp. She is survived by a brother, Harry Ater, Trobels, where funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock followed by services at 2:30 o'clock at the Brethren Church, Zimmerman. Burial will be made in Mt. Zion Cemetery.

PLAN CHILD HEALTH CONFERENCE HERE SATURDAY, APRIL 16

Greene County's first conference on child health and protection will be held at the First M. E. Church, Xenia, Saturday April 16, it was announced Wednesday. This conference is planned as a follow up meeting of President Hoover's White House Conference on Child Health and Protection held in Washington, D. C., last fall and also of Governor George White's Child Conference held in Columbus in January.

Probate Judge S. C. Wright is general chairman of the conference here and the theme of the meeting will be health, care, education and protection of children, he announces.

There will be three sessions of the conference, the morning session opening at 9 o'clock, a noon luncheon session and an afternoon meeting opening at 1:30 o'clock. Luncheon will be served by women of the First M. E. Church at fifty cents a plate and there will also be an additional registration fee of twenty-five cents per person, Judge Wright announces.

Speakers engaged for the conference include Dr. Charles Scott Berry, of the college of education, Ohio State University; Miss Mary Irene Atkinson, superintendent of division of charities, of the department of public welfare of the state of Ohio, who will speak at the luncheon session; Dr. D. Obersteuffer, supervisor of health and physical education, state of Ohio; A. E. Roberts, executive of the Boy Scouts of America, Cincinnati and Dr. E. Fischel, Dayton.

The meeting is sponsored by public school teachers, ministers, Boy Scout leaders and public welfare organizations of Greene County.

Further details of the program, including music, will be announced later by Judge Wright.

COUNSEL TO MEET COURT OF APPEALS

Clarification of a recent partial decision handed down by the Court of Appeals in litigation involving the partly finished centralized school building in Beaver Creek Twp. was to be sought by attorneys in the case at a conference with the appellate court judges in Columbus early Wednesday afternoon. The conference was fixed for 1 o'clock.

At this conference it was expected to be determined whether a test will be made of the load-bearing walls of the building on which further construction work has been held in abeyance since December 12 last. Pending the possibility of such a test, the appeals court withheld a final decision in the taxpayer's injunction suit against The W. H. Howard Construction Co., Columbus, general contractor.

NEW CHAPTER IN LIFE OF MRS. MASSIE WRITTEN BY TRIAL

MRS. THALIA MASSIE

"What is love? What is life?" she asked the Mother Superior

By JACKSON V. JACOBS

Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Twelve years ago a delicate blonde girl of eleven approached the mother superior of the exclusive St. Mary's Academy for Girls in Alexandria, Va., and asked:

"Mother, what is love? What is life?" and many more of the questions which occupy the thoughts of precocious youth.

The nun answered redundantly if evasively, and then countered: "Thalia, why don't you go play with the other girls? Why are you always thinking about these things; always off by yourself reading a book instead of getting some fresh air and exercise?"

"Well, mother," the child answered, "the girls of my own age don't interest me. And the other girls say I am too young to play with them."

What the Years Brought That child was to become Mrs. Thalia Massie, wife of a dashing, young naval lieutenant and now the central figure of an east-west drama of criminal attack and murder in Hawaii.

Today she is wrapped up in the trial of her husband, her mother, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, and two enlisted naval men, as the four stand trial in Honolulu for the slaying of one of the five natives who had been charged with attacking her last September.

Native Murdered After the trial of the five young men charged with the crime, at which the jury disagreed, and the suspects, Joe Kahahawai—out on bond awaiting a new trial—was found dead in an automobile driven by Mrs. Granville Fortescue, Thalia's mother, Lieut. Massie was also in the car, and two of his sailor subordinates. Police charged all four with murder in the second degree.

Clarence Darrow, noted criminal attorney, went to Hawaii to head the defense counsel at the present trial.

Thalia Fortescue's wedding to Lieut. Massie in Bethlehem chapel of the uncompleted Washington cathedral was one of the most brilliant social events of 1927.

Weds "Service Man" Like her mother before her, Thalia Fortescue had married a "service man"—handsome and adventurous, member of a well-known family in Winchester, Ky.

Her father, Major Fortescue, was decorated for his valor with the late Theodore Roosevelt's Rough Riders in the Spanish-American War and later served as one of President Roosevelt's military aides. He now is recuperating from a stroke of pneumonia at his home in New York, still not strong enough to attend his daughter and wife in their hour of need.

The young Massies (she was only 18 at the time of their marriage) enjoyed—so their intimates say—a perpetual honeymoon. The somber Thalia, who previously had preferred mental to physical play, never tired of romping with her husband.

Once, on a tour of duty in New York, they amused themselves by peddling clothespins up and down the block.

On another occasion, they came across a baby taking a sunning in its go-cart and, thinking to amuse some of their service friends, pushed the buggy around the block—for a lark! The distracted mother called the police for kidnapping. But, when explanations had been made all around, the case was dropped.

Brilliant Antecedents Friends of Thalia Fortescue Massie and her lieutenant-husband, find it difficult to reconcile their plight today with all the future had promised them.

She, a lineal descendant of Alexander Graham Bell, had demonstrated the trace of genius of the telephone's inventor as well as the penchant for study of her mother, Grace Fortescue. Likewise in her mind must have been some of the romantic strain of her soldier, author-diplomat father, Major Fortescue. With him and her mother, little Thalia had tramped the world; had learned to speak French fluently, so that she was ever getting ahead of her class in the Catholic academy where she was sent as a girl. What others learned from books, she knew from experience.

REPORT 1500 GIVEN IMMUNIZATION FOR DIPHTHERIA HERE

More than 1500 children were immunized against diphtheria during the first three months of 1932 according to the quarterly report of Dr. R. H. Grube, county health commissioner and Mrs. Pearl Wittenmyer, county health nurse, given at a meeting of the Greene County District Board of Health Saturday. Seven cases of diphtheria and ten cases of scarlet fever were quarantined during this period but at present there are only two cases of scarlet fever and no cases of diphtheria in the county.

The health commissioner made 120 trips to homes of quarantined families and in doing immunization work. In addition to her regular work, Mrs. Wittenmyer, county health nurse, assisted various agencies for giving help to the unemployed.

The following report was made by Mrs. Wittenmyer for her activities during March: nine visits to seven pre-natal cases now being carried, seven visits to five maternity cases, seven visits to six infants, eighty-two visits to pre-school children, sixty-three school visits, 146 teacher consultations and fifty-one parents' consultations at school, sixty-seven home follow-up visits to school children, sixty incidental inspections of school children and assisted in giving immunization treatments against diphtheria.

The county is now carrying twenty-nine tuberculosis cases, thirty-nine suspect cases, 163 contacts and two arrested cases. During March Mrs. Wittenmyer made thirty-one visits to these cases in addition to two calls on contagious disease cases. The county has under observation nineteen crippled children, who have been or are being treated, twenty-three cases not being treated and five non-remediable cases. Mrs. Wittenmyer made sixteen visits on crippled children during the month.

Twenty-eight calls on physicians were made by the nurse, three visits to hospitals and clinics, six calls in behalf of patients, nine social service calls and nine miscellaneous calls. There were twelve office consultations, four out-of-county trips, four meetings attended and two health talks, nine letters written and fifty-two telephone consultations, according to Mrs. Wittenmyer's report.

"FOUR HUNDRED" FIGURES

Social Leaders of New York and Nation as Seen by Ethelda Bedford, Gazette Staff Writer

By ETHELDA BEDFORD

Author of "Dear Diary"

NEW YORK, April 6.—Of course, one doesn't really point at the best social gatherings, but, figuratively speaking, Mrs. Henry Carnegie Phipps is pointing out because of her rare distinction of being a "great lady" by birth. For generations she can trace New York forbears. And if you know your Gotham society you know that is very, very unusual—to be born into New York society!

Mrs. Phipps is conservative, both in dress and manner. She is slim, despite middle age, and her interesting face has both a sparkle and a wistfulness.

You see her in modest tweeds, wandering about the paddock at Belmont Park, carrying a pad and pencil and making little notes about the horses. The track is her hobby.

One of Twins

She is one of the twin daughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Mills. Her mother was Ruth Livingston of The Livingstons whose social prestige is second to none. And while Mrs. Mills had many friends, to those who did not like her she was known as "the greatest snob in America." And among those she didn't consider to be liking was no less than the late Mrs. William Astor!

Mrs. Phipps' mother also was a twin—her sister married Cavendish Bentinck, a member of the English dual house of Portland. As the lovely belle, Gladys Mills, Mrs. Phipps entertained and was entertained lavishly. (She never was known to withhold from the press details of her parties.) There are those in Gotham society who still tell over and over again the enjoyable times had at the Livingston manor, at Staatsburgh-on-the-Hudson, the Georgian residence of Mrs. Phipps during her girlhood and at the villa "Ocean View" at Newport.

She has traveled much—spending much time in Europe, and hobnobbing with notables. Her education lacks nothing in the way of social education. A princess could be no more schooled in The Right Things. But she never knew the need of any of the requirements to furnish these blessings of royalty. She truly was an American princess.

Her father was one of the most successful of the "49ers." In spite of the great fortune in her family, Mrs. Phipps, as a child, learned the value of even the lowly penny. She never was extravagant.

She never attended a public school. As a child, was apt at penmanship and arithmetic.

Spends much time at her home in Roslyn, L. I., known as "Spring Hill," and cares practically nothing about society of today.

Mrs. Phipps is probably one of the most envied figures in the "400," however—her position is so beautifully secure, and you know, there are so many so-called "great ladies" who can't hold a candle besides the family tree of this charming, retiring woman.

THREE PRISONERS ARE GIVEN PAROLES

Three prisoners sentenced from Greene County are included in a list of 333 convicts to whom paroles were issued by the State Board of Paroles and Pardons Tuesday.

Robert Terrill is to be paroled from the Mansfield state reformatory April 20; James Mangan is to be freed from the reformatory April 25, and William Stagelies, to be released July 21.

Mangan was given a suspended sentence of from one to twenty years in August, 1925, on an auto theft charge. When he was re-arrested in January, 1931, on a charge of stealing corn, the parole was revoked and the original sentence ordered enforced.

Stagelies, sentenced for carrying concealed weapons, is to be paroled with the stipulation that he leaves the state. Terrill was sent to the state reformatory on a charge of breaking and entering.

WHEN TEETHING makes HIM FUSSY

Teething time brings its troubles! For so often teeth cut through the tender gums in hot weather, when there is danger of digestive upsets anyway.

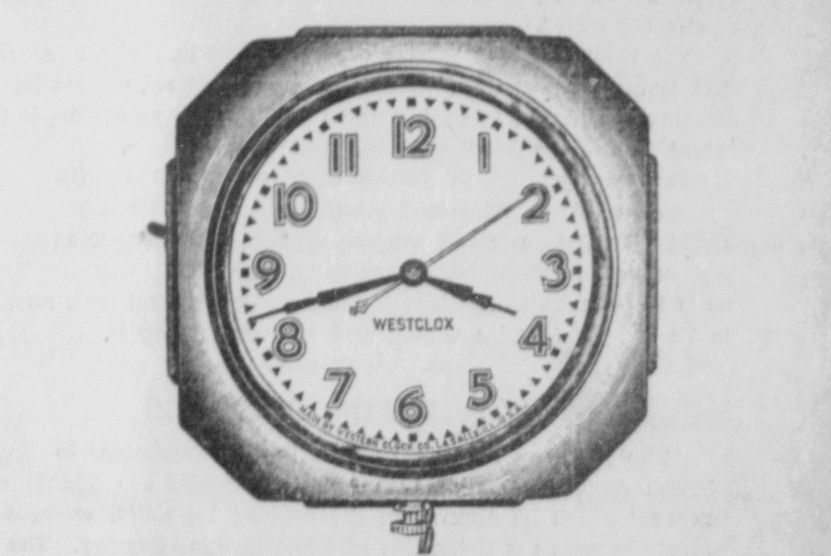

One of the most important things you can do to make a teething baby comfortable, is to see that waste matter is carried off promptly and regularly.

For this, there's nothing like Castoria. It is made specially for the delicate needs of babies and children. It acts so gently, you can give it to young infants to relieve colic pains. Yet it is always effective—keeps older children well regulated.

Castoria is a harmless vegetable preparation; it contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics.

When your baby is fretful and feverish with a teething upset, give a cleansing dose of Castoria to make him comfortable. Get genuine Castoria with the name, Chas. H. Fletcher, on the package. It now comes in two sizes. The new family size contains about 2½ times the amount in the regular size.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Although affliction cometh not forth of the dust, neither doth trouble spring out of the ground. — Job, v. 6.

IN MANCHURIA

The immediate future of Mr. Henry Pu Yi's Manchurian Barataria seems more likely to be dictated by Chinese guerrillas than by Chiang Kai Shek's flamboyant utterances. Chiang, at a safe distance from Manchukuo, shouts that the new state is still a part of China and that China will resist with arms any further attacks by the Japanese! The brigands actually on the ground are giving the Japanese much more to think about. They are out in force, swarming over the country, aggressively seeking to make hay while the sun of disorder and confusion shines.

The Japanese simply have to go to Mr. Pu Yi's assistance. They cannot allow their puppet to be toppled from the pedestal upon which they have placed him, without losing "face" at home and abroad and running the risk of encouraging anti-Japanese sentiment in Chosen, which is still far from being spiritually pacified. Whatever denials its spokesmen may enter, Japan brought Manchukuo into the world—if not by direct intrigue, then by the inevitability of events following from its recent operations in Manchuria; and it is now up to Japan to take care of its political spawn. Other nations have shown no eagerness to aid it in doing so.

Chosen may yet appear to have been an easy nut for Japan to crack, compared to Manchuria. The 25,000,000 or 30,000,000 people in Manchuria today, with the exception of about 1,000,000 Japanese and Chosenese and three or four million Manchus, are recent Chinese immigrants. They are still sentimentally close to their fellow-countrymen south and west of the Great Wall. Consequently they provide fertile soil in which to propagate the seeds of active and passive resistance to Japanese rule, camouflaged or overt. They resent the Japanese economic invasion of their country more than they do the military invasion of it.

The brigands and "irregulars" with which Manchuria teems are tools already fashioned to the hand of this resentment. All any Government in China Proper need do to keep Manchukuo in turmoil, is to keep these guerrillas fed on a mixed diet of patriotic oratory and bribery. The opportunity for looting that the situation provides will complete the temptation. The career of Koxinga, who, with his son, worried the Manchus in China from 1644 to 1683, at times as a patriot, at other times as a pirate, seems to stand a good chance of being repeated in Manchuria, with the Japanese taxpayers standing the treat, as long as their patience with their imperialists holds out. What will happen to Mr. Pu Yi, if Manchuria turns out to be Japan's Riff, will not be worth writing home about.

AMERICAN PRESTIGE

A two-months' visit to Paris and Geneva convinces a United States official of "the total lack of influence" by America on European councils. "At no time since 1917," he says, "has American influence been so inconsiderable. American prestige so low." The alleged reason is that Europe feels that it cannot settle the reparations and debt questions without the aid of America and it "cannot find an America to deal with." The reason it cannot find an America to deal with is the apparent conflict of views on foreign affairs between Congress and the Administration.

That's too bad. The United States Government has been functioning for upwards of 140 years now; and if European chancelleries do not yet know where to look for the real expression of American sentiment, they need a course in American history. Congress is the voice of the Country. The Executive can initiate moves in international matters; but it is the Senate that has the final say. The present Congress has said pretty plainly what the great mass of people in this Country feels with respect to the settlement of Europe's war debts to the United States: That, whatever it may do with reparations, which is its own business, Europe should pay what it owes us on account of the war, according to its capacity to pay. Also that, as far as further reductions of Europe's war debt to this Country is concerned, we have already gone as far as we can, and further than anything but an exaggerated generosity counseled.

The trouble is that Europe does not want to find an America of that temper to deal with. What it wants to find are excuses for further delaying the day of reckoning and for ultimately squirming, if possible, out of footing the bill it owes the American taxpayer.

American prestige in Europe could not sink lower than European prestige in this Country long since has sunk. A dozen years after the World War Europe is still a house divided against itself on reparations and economic rehabilitation generally. The first thing for Europe to do is to get text to itself. When it does that, it will have no difficulty in finding an America willing and anxious to help it.

SPIRIT OF VENGEANCE

The chairman of the New York State Commission to Investigate Prison Administration and Construction decries the "spirit of vengeance" which he discerns in the demand for stiffer exemplary sentences to meet the rising tide of crime in this Country. The lasting benefit to society is the purpose of punishing criminals, and as Chairman Lewisohn sees it, this is not served by "indiscriminate severity."

Vengeance ought not to play any part in our penal system, even though justification for it be found in the Scriptures; but it is to be feared that many soft-hearted people see vengeance, where only the severity necessary to protect society from anti-social elements is present. A parent is not vengeful when he is forced to punish a child for deliberate and premeditated wrong doing or when he has to restrain it from further predatory acts. The Scriptures also have something to say about sparing the rod and spoiling the child.

Criminals are the bad boys and girls of society. The law is the rod by which society attempts to restrain them in their own interest, and in the interest of those who have to live in the same world with them. Application of that rod ought not to be indiscriminate to the point of discouraging reformation; but it should be severe enough, when severity is the only thing that will register with a criminal, to obtain the ends for which laws are enacted and penalties prescribed.

The disposition of many people to find in vengeance and other disagreeable words, alibis for persistent and determined criminals, plays directly into the hands of anti-social elements in this Country and thus encourages them to mock the courts and thumb their noses at the law.

One younger received one of those rare blows on the nerve under the chin which k.o'd him on his feet. He stood and grinned at his opponent, without knowing where he was.

Benny Leonard, incidentally, is training for a comeback. He is an entertaining after-dinner speaker, his best gag being the remark his aged father is claimed to have made after one of Benny's defeats: "Knocking you down was bad enough, but why did that man stand over you afterwards pointing his finger up and down and handing you a lecture?"

For the first time in my life I was handed a dollar too much change by a taxi driver who was too modest to call my attention to the mistake, and whom I had to chase half a block. Lou Gensler, Norman Anthony, the editor of "Ballyhoo," Russell Patterson and Bobby Connolly, the dance singer, were in serious confab the other day over their show, to be tagged "Ballyhoo of 1932," and to be comprised of skits ribbing everything and everybody.

PARAGRAPHS ON THE SAND

Sound cameras cost about $6,000 each.

A small, humorous drama developed the other noon when a millionaire collector of rare coins dropped one of the foreign pieces absent-mindedly into a B. M. T. subway turnstile. He called the guard, who took the box apart and returned the precious slug, afterwards giving the numismatist a sharp lecture on trying to gyp the line. The recovered piece was worth about $45.

Jack Benny is the only master of ceremonies I know who dresses like a banker and always looks as if he's just cleaned up twenty grand on the market.

The hors d'oeuvre I nibbled on at a movie mogul's tea the other afternoon, and which I imagined was a more than ordinarily pungent slice of tongue, turned out to be no such thing on investigation—but preserved coo's' combs imported from England!

A letter in my mail this morning was sent in care of a paper in Xenia, O., forwarded to Cleveland, O., and thence to New York, covering some 3,000 miles to reach me from Lyndhurst, N. J., some dozens of miles distant. Note: I have received no chain letters in over a month, thanks be!

WHAT FED NEW YORKERS KNOW

That there is not one, but four, ghettos in New York, each with its distinct characteristics and color.

That there are 10 forts guarding Manhattan, and the one which is least suited strategically to be of much use in case of attack is Governor's Island, where the army headquarters is situated!

That there is a carved figure caricaturing Woolworth decorating the interior of the building which bears the dime store magnate's name. He is shown adding another nickel to the ample pile of the coins already beside him.

That there are 287 varieties of cheese, and if you say I'm the 288th you're an old meagle.

Where did Maraschino cherries originate?

Correctly Speaking—

"Overly" is a vulgarism. Say "I'm not over-anxious." Not "I'm not overly anxious."

Today's Horoscope

Persons born on this day can be sarcastic, critical, and overbearing.

Today's Anniversary

On this day, in 1838, the Great Western, first regular transatlantic liner, left Bristol for New York.

Answers to Foregoing Questions

1. The orange is a native of India or southern China.
2. It was produced by Judge J. H. Logan of California in 1881.
3. Maraschino cherries are made from Maraschino cherries grown chiefly in Zara, Dalmatia.

G.O.P. Reluctant To Blame Financial Difficulties On World War And Wilson

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Is it not somewhat surprising that apologists for the Republican administration's financial troubles do not make more of the arguments that today's difficulties would not exist in any such measure as they do, if the last Democratic administration had not laid the foundation for them?

Federal expenses were about a billion a year before the war. Now they are about five billions. And they cannot be cut back to the initial billion because approximately three billions out of the five are represented by war debt payments and veterans' aid—irreducible items.

Supposing that the cost of actually running the government could be economized down to the pre-war figure, the treasury's annual requirements still would total four times what they were.

The Democrats, to be sure, make out a mighty convincing case in support of their charges of persistent Republican bungling of an already deplorable state of affairs. But why do the Republicans so infrequently point out that, after all, it is a state of affairs which a Democratic administration left on their hands?

I suppose the answer is that even Republicans do not care to admit that the United States might have stayed out of the war. With politicians it is a matter of principle, rising high above partisanship, to maintain that Uncle Sam never took up arms except through dire necessity; to concede that he ever made a mistake in doing so might make it hard to stir up enthusiasm for some future war.

So long, however, as Republicans as well as Democrats stand pat that American entrance into the last conflict was unescapable, of course the G. O. P. can find no fault with the Wilson regime for leading the country into it, and pulling up such a load of obligations.

True, it is not easy to find a public man who is willing to express quite this view of present conditions. Democrats insist on placing the blame for everything upon Harding, Coolidge and Hoover mismanagement. Republicans would be delighted to attribute the crisis to germs planted in President Wilson's time, but, as suggested above, cannot do it without implying that America's participation in the world struggle might have been avoided, and are fearful of being considered unpatriotic if they hint at anything of the sort—which undoubtedly accounts for their inclination to seek international reasons for current tribulations, rather than to discern them in White House policies of the war era.

The utter political unorthodoxy of Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota may, then, be judged from the fact that he boldly denounces both pre-war and post-war statesmanship, as jointly responsible for America's troubles of the last two and a half years, culminating in the pending congressional tax fight.

"Primarily," says the senator, "we unquestionably have the Wilson administration to thank for what we have been through, are going through and still have ahead of us."

"We have the Harding, Coolidge and Hoover administrations to thank for making it as bad as possible."

"I would feel that the greater weight of reprobation should fall upon Democratic policy, for starting it all—were it not for subsequent absolute Republican subservency to the interests which inflated the boom, and to the Republican reduction of taxes at the wrong time, thus aggravating the crash. Added to this were the false assurances of the Republicans that renewed prosperity was 'just around the corner.'"

"If it were left," added the North Dakotan, "to the 'old guardmen' of the two supposedly opposing parties, the tax controversy would be settled with the strong boxes, not of one party alone, but to both of them, have dealt rather more liberally with the G. O. P. than with the Democrats."

Is it a rule which will hold good this year, however—with Democratic chances generally deemed so much better than usual? "That," answered the senator, "altogether depends on how the two parties' representatives behave, in comparison with one another, in the matter of the economic readjustments pending in Washington."

In the past, as a rule, contributors who, from their deep interest in politics, have given to the strong boxes, not of one party alone, but to both of them, have dealt rather more liberally with the G. O. P. than with the Democrats.

Once, driving suddenly round a turn in a pitch-black night, I disturbed a coyote. Startled, he floated easily off the road and over a low rail fence. He did not run, he drifted without fear, without panic endeavor.

And though I do not know why, and though he has long passed beyond reach of poison or hunter, I remember that little animal still—and I still keep that memory with me as something wholly beautiful.

I heard someone say, mournfully, pathetically: "If only someone had told me—"

I didn't hear the rest of the sentence or what it was that someone should have told, but I do know that nearly all of us think that everything would have been different if someone at some time had only told us something we should have known.

But I don't believe it would have made the slightest difference, after all. Because our lives do not hang on other people's sayings, but on some strong peg within ourselves.

SPRING OLYMPICS

How Diet May Affect Vision

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

In a boarding school near Edinburgh, in Scotland, about five years ago, a curious epidemic of pink eye kept recurring among the pupils. Pink eye is the common name for conjunctivitis, an inflammation of the external membrane of the eyeball. No form of treatment relieved the conjunctivitis in this epidemic at all.

Finally one of the physicians decided to investigate the food supply. It was found that to save expense the food was prepared in cauldrons and boiled for three or four hours, destroying the vitamins. Dr. G. M. Findlay, who made this discovery and reported the epidemic in the Proceedings of the Royal Society of Medicine, recommended that all the scholars have daily doses of raw swede juice and cod liver oil; on this treatment alone the epidemic promptly cleared up.

Vitamin A seems to be particularly concerned with the eye. When it is deficient in the diet a disease called "xerophthalmia" results. It is quite rare in humans, however, as any average diet contains good portions of Vitamin A. It is contained in milk, butter, cheese, egg yolk, cod liver oil, liver kidney and roe, carrots, cabbage, lettuce, spinach, tomatoes, bananas and turnip greens. It is destroyed by prolonged contact with the open air and long heating in open vessels.

Other effects of diet on the eye are noted by Lane in a recent contribution. Hemeralopia, or decreased vision, especially at night, is a result of dietary deficiency. Extensive epidemics of this condition have been reported, especially in populations in which the diet is lacking in fresh foods during the winter months. Hemeralopia characteristically develops in the spring months, due partly to prolonged lack of green foodstuffs and partly to the excessive stimulation of the spring sunlight.

One of the close relations between faulty nutrition and the eye is seen in the falling vision of untreated diabetes. The experienced oculist frequently is the first to make the diagnosis of diabetes from a study of the retina or internal layer of the eye. Hemorrhages occur here in the course of diabetes. The vision is frequently much improved by putting the patient on a proper diet.

Husband Indifferent

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"Dear Virginia Lee: Can you help me solve my problem? Shall I give up hope or continue to doubt my husband's love for me?"

"While perhaps he would be considered an average man, his attitude toward me is puzzling. He never concerns himself about my comfort, health or happiness, such as providing labor saving devices or showing any interest in our home or surroundings. If I express a desire for a nice home, flowers, shrubs, etc., he replies something like this: 'Yes, I've seen women like you before. Never satisfied with what they have.'"

"He selects all purchases as food and clothing (even my own). Is indifferent when I'm ill. Never yet has given me a birthday or Christmas present."

"He has a habit of slurring my physical make-up such as height, weight, complexion and features, and also has a fondness for making light remarks about me in the presence of other people. Never does he kiss or embrace me while in a serious mood, and never shows any sign of love except in a joking manner."

"He seldom apologizes, and if my feelings are wounded, if I approach him for a heart to heart talk, I receive some light, meaningless answer or he finally pushes me from him with some cutting remark, giving me a feeling of miles between us. What is your explanation?"

"Betty K."

There are some people, Betty K., so constituted that they cannot express appreciation or affection for any one dear to them. Some of this inability to articulate may be inherited, and home training is responsible for more.

They have the attitude that if they show their loved ones that they love and are proud of them, that they will lose the respect of that person. They must, therefore, bully them to "keep them in their places."

This may be your husband's feeling. He may distrust his power of making a woman love him, and feel that he must "keep you under his thumb" and deny himself all show of affection or appreciation, and you any freedom in order to feel safe. It's a case of jealousy, I believe.

What else do you do? If you can be cheery and laugh at his ways, if you can go ahead and do what you want to in making your home attractive and trying to share it with him and showing no repulsion or hurt feeling at his lack of response, you may win him over in time. There may come a time when he will acknowledge that you mean a great deal to him. And it may be that he never will open up.

If you care enough to try to understand and help him and to keep on when hope of a change seems lost, that is the thing you should do. That is the only thing to do, isn't it, when one finds oneself married to a person who is a stranger—to try to understand and help?

And it is one of the strangest of human phenomena that so often a person will like his husband, be cruel to those he loves and would give his life for, thus turning their love to indifference or even hate.

Beauty Is More Than Skin Deep

By GLADYS GLAD

If beauty were only skin deep, that "save the surface and you save all" idea would probably be pretty true. But beauty is far more than "skin deep," for it depends to a very great extent upon the proper functioning of the entire body, upon good health.

It is the skin particularly that most obviously reflects the daily changes of bodily disposition. It is intimately related to the many activities of the body and accurately registers the body's condition.

And no matter how many soaps, creams and lotions you use to keep your skin clean outside, if you do not keep your body clean and free from poisons inside, your skin will inevitably suffer.

Spring is the time when every conscientious housekeeper gets out her duster and broom and gives the old homestead a good, thorough housecleaning. And after the sedentary winter season that's just what every woman needs herself. A thorough, internal spring cleaning. A good routine that will cleanse her digestive tract of all debris, that will eliminate any impurities that may be polluting her blood stream.

If your complexion as become faded, unclear and sallow during the winter season, the first thing you should do is to amend your diet. Eliminate those rich, heavy dishes that probably constituted a large part of your diet during the cold months. Substitute for them the delicious fresh fruits and vegetables that are so abundant in the springtime.

Eat plentifully of the leafy and stemmy plants especially. Broccoli, tender carrots and string beans, asparagus, leafy spinach, crisp lettuce and plump crimson tomatoes. Foods that are not only delicious, but that give to the skin the clearness and transparency of a babe's.

And remember about your water intake. That is one point that I always stress because it really is far more important than most women credit it with being. See to it that you drink at least ten glasses of water every day—two or three of them the first thing upon arising in the morning, if possible.

And, in addition, you obtain sufficient rest and exercise each day, you should blossom forth into new beauty this season, just as Nature blossoms into radiant loveliness each spring.

PHAR LAP, "WONDER HORSE", SUCCUMBS SUDDENLY TUESDAY

Great Money Winner Victim Of Attack Of Indigestion

PERRY STABLES, Menlo Park, Calif., April 6—Phar Lap, the mighty "wonder horse" from Australia, lay dead today in the rambling frame stables of Ed Perry's stock farm.

Red-eyed from lack of sleep and from crying, the little group of horsemen who sat beside the blanket-covered body in flickering lantern light all night long, was still stunned by the loss of their "Bobby."

A sudden attack of acute indigestion yesterday felled the great gelding which crossed the Pacific Ocean to win the $50,000 Agua Caliente handicap and captured the admiration of the American sporting public.

David J. Davis, co-owner of the track monarch, arrived today by airplane from Los Angeles. He entered the stable, lifted the blanket and, as tears streamed down his face, murmured, "poor Bobby." He dropped the blanket over the horse which had won $332,250 for him and his Australian partner, and stumbled outside to his wife.

He said he had valued "Bobby," as he was called affectionately by the small retinue of Australian horsemen, at $500,000, and that he was not insured.

"The financial loss means nothing," Davis explained. "We never regarded Bobby in the light of dollars and cents. He was a prince among horses, with almost human intelligence. We almost worshipped him from the sporting angle and loved him for his own affectionate self."

Dr. William Neilson, the Australian veterinarian, related all rumors that Phar Lap had been poisoned. He said, "There is not the slightest suspicion of poisoning. The autopsy last night showed that acute indigestion and inflammation of the stomach contributed to his death."

Dr. Neilson said a gastric disorder had been noticed Sunday, probably caused by nibbling for tail or damming alfalfa. And the disorder was stimulated by eating barley, purchased nearby Monday. It became serious too late for medical skill to save the racer.

As the turf world gradually recovered from its amazement at the sudden passing of the greatest money-winning gelding in history, cables and telegrams of condolence began pouring in for Mr. and Mrs. Davis. Phar Lap stood next to W. H. Sharpe Kilmer's Sun Beau as the greatest money-winning horse of all time. And a special event at Tanforan track, nearby, had been arranged for this month, at which Phar Lap might have established a new record.

Davis said the 10,000 mile trip from Australia and the changing of climatic conditions in the United States might have weakened the horse's resistance. He arrived at San Francisco from "down under" on January 15. After a brief rest at Tanforan, he was taken to Agua Caliente where he beat a field of outstanding American stake horses in the handicap.

Davis and Harry Telford of Australia bought the colossus horse in the Antipodes for $800.

"He was nameless when I purchased him," Davis explained. "We debated a long time whether we should call him 'Lightning' or 'Phar Lap.' Finally someone told me Phar Lap meant lightning in Javanese and there we were."

In forty-eight races, Phar Lap placed in all but nine. In those nine he carried the heaviest impost of 150 pounds. During October and November last year, he won eight races out of nine starts. His great stamina permitted him to win the Melbourne cup at two miles; the Futurity Stakes at 7 furlongs; and meet an Australian record of two minutes and one-half seconds for the mile and a quarter, within a period of six months. He was six years old.

Phar Lap had been scheduled for an intensive track campaign in the Middle West this summer, to be followed by a tour of English tracks.

CLEAR THE TRACK! - - - HERE THEY COME!

HOOT! HOOT!
Clear that track, boy!

Here comes the Major League Express, bound north and home, bubbling over with a brand new bunch of ball players and all the old, familiar heroes!

The big train is bound for the terminal known as Opening Day—when the real joy ride actually begins!

Up from the South where the cotton and the rookie bloom, up from

Dixie where frost-bitten soupbones thawed and batting eyes sharpened to July keenness, up from the land of sunshine and training camps comes a whole summerful of excitement, thrills and red-hot ball games.

Hoot! Hoot!

Flash the "Go Ahead!" green straight up the right-of-way for old Engineer Landis is bringing his crew through the bush league belt straight back to the big time.

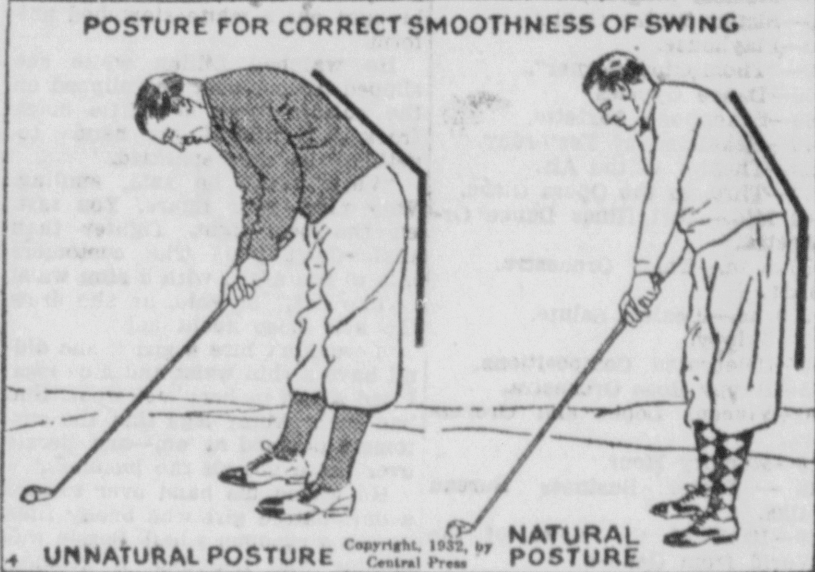

Everybody's aboard—from the world champion Cardinals down to the tallenders. Babe Ruth, Lefty Grove, Pepper Martin, the Browns and the Braves, McGrawmen and Macks, the whole show is moving north.

And back in the baggage car of the old Major League Express are stored the answers to every fan's question. Who'll win? Who'll lose? What will the rookies do? They'll begin to unload those answers at April 12.

But right now—the big trek is on! The baseball boys are coming home!

Golf Facts, Not Theories CORRECT POSTURE NECESSARY TO ACQUIRE PERFECT SWING

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is No. 4 of a series of golf lessons by Alex Morrison, golf's star teacher.

By ALEX J. MORRISON
Golf's Foremost Technician
THERE ARE days when you just drop into the right starting position for your swing; a position that immediately gives you the feeling that you are going to hit a good shot.

Other days, no matter how hard you try, you simply can't get into a comfortable position. The confidence and comfort you need at the start of your swing can be had only by giving the proper attention to your body posture.

Of course, you want to have your arms and hands, legs and feet, properly arranged. Also, you want these members to function comfortably and efficiently during your swing. Obviously, this result can't be had unless your spinal column is kept in a natural position.

An unnatural posture may not be so noticeable to you at the start of your swing but it will surely make itself felt when you get into action. For example, if you set out for a walk with your back hunched over in an unnatural position, the unnaturalness would make itself felt in your arms and legs before you walked very far. You could immediately make yourself more comfortable by straightening up.

Unfortunately, you cannot do this in the golf swing. If your spinal column is in an unnatural position after the swing has gotten under way there is no means of overcoming this handicap. If you

REDS SHOW IMPROVEMENT

Outstrip Other Second Division Clubs In Appearance; May Finish Higher

By STUART CAMERON

NEW YORK, April 6.—Lower division teams of the National League will start the 1932 season next week fortified with an abundance of hopes for improvement and some of them, with real reasons for making percentage gains.

Last year's second division clubs in order of finish, were the Pittsburgh Pirates, Philadelphia Phillies, Boston Braves and Cincinnati Reds.

Of these the Reds have completely outclassed their rivals in the matter of probable individual player and team improvement. They have added strength. The Reds had fair pitching a year ago, but game after game was dribbled away because the Cincy batters did not get the two or three runs needed to bring victory.

Cincinnati was credited with having been the "goat" of the four-player trade with Brooklyn. Now it appears that this might not have been the case. In obtaining Babe Herman the Reds got a whole lot of the batting strength they need.

Of course it's possible that the Babe will sulk over having been traded downstream but the chances are that he will attempt to "show those guys." And when Herman really tries he gets things done.

Manager Dan Howley of the Reds will offer Harvey Hendrick, Taylor Douthett, George Grantham, Wally Reuther, Ernie Lombardi, Wally Gilbert, and Clyde Manion as material added since the start of the 1931 season. Tony Cucinelli, Joe Stripp and Clyde Sukeforth are the chief losses. In other words, the Reds have gained batting power, which they sadly needed, and lost none of their mitted pitching strength.

The Phillies of 1932 don't appear to be greatly different than those of 1931. There has been only slight personnel change. They will continue (largely because of Chuck Klein) to be one of the heaviest hitting teams in the majors, but their former pitching weakness remains. There is more than an even chance that Philadelphia, which finished sixth last season, may be passed by the Reds or the Braves, or both. This is almost certain to happen if Phil Collins, Jumbo Elliott, the leading pitchers, do not have creditable seasons.

PREJUDICE SCORED IN REVIVAL SERMON

"The worst sin in Xenia or any other city, excepting sin against the Holy Ghost, is religious prejudice," declared Evangelist F. W. Strong, Ft. Worth, Tex., at revival services of the Church of Christ at the Opera House Tuesday night.

The speaker's subject was "The Devil's Hangout in Xenia," and he declared: "Religious prejudice committed the most horrible tragedy of all times—the crucifixion of Christ. When the politicians wanted to free Christ the religious leaders cried 'crucify Him!'"

A delegation from Perry, O., attended the service and presented special numbers on the program. The Rev. Mr. Strong's subject Wednesday night will be "Hell's Prayer for a Savior."

PREMIER ASSAULTED, GOVERNMENT OFFICES WRECKED BY RIOTERS

forced him to telephone orders for an increase in unemployment relief.

Sir Richard obviously realized his great danger. Surrounded by the mob, he took a ring from his finger and handed it to a burly fisherman, John Power, one of his few defenders among the citizenry.

"Take this John. They may drown me," Sir Richard said as he handed the fisherman his ring. Most of the police force was driven inside the parliament buildings along with members of the government and the opposition deputies. The besieged were allowed to leave the wrecked buildings at 10 p. m. last night, after being held for six hours. The police passed out in single file through the mob, their uniforms torn, heads and faces sore and bleeding.

They were released only after the mob had been assured that Inspector General Hutchings had escaped. Officers returned to their barracks and the crowd looted and jeered. Other police were roughly handled by rioters in other parts of the city.

The Rev. Father Pippy, shielding the prime minister from the mob after he had been smuggled out of the parliament buildings, stood his ground courageously as the hostile crowd came charging toward him. Father Pippy and his companions were pushed roughly against an automobile. The priest climbed on the running board and made a fervent appeal that the crowd do nothing further to harm the premier.

The crowd then retreated. The priest and his assistants carried Sir Richard to a nearby house. He then escaped through a rear door. Lady Squires, wife of Sir Richard, was attending the session of parliament when the riot started. She left immediately with other ladies. The crowd was civil to them, the men doffing hats and opening a way for them through the mob.

The attack on the houses of parliament lasted two hours. When it was finished not a sound pane of glass was left in the buildings. Kicking in doors and smashing windows, the infuriated mob swept upstairs and entered the chamber proper through the strangers' gallery. The speaker of the house jumped up and announced temporary adjournment. Members fled into adjoining rooms, barricading doors behind them.

The mob, with many women and young boys and girls taking part, singled out the police for their attack. The officers retreated under a deadly shower of stones, sticks, and anything that could be used for weapons.

Police on the ground floor attempted to turn back the attackers. They were swept away. Once the crowd had stormed the main entrance of the building there was nothing to hold it back.

Furniture, desks, chairs, tables, radios, everything the invaders could lay hands on was smashed and thrown aside or used for weapons. Doors and partitions were kicked in. The crash of broken wood and shattered glass mingled with the victorious shouts of the wreckers.

A piano was carried outside to a nearby park. One of the rioters sat down and played a few popular tunes. Ten someone started dancing on the piano keys. A few minutes later the expensive instrument was wreckage.

The Boston Braves, last season's seventh place club, will pin their hopes to new material. Fritz Knothe, obtained from Seattle, is to play third, and Oscar Eckhardt, outfielder, bought from the Milwaukee Braves, is the Pacific coast's leading batter in 1931, promise to add batting strength. The Braves drafted Walter Betts from St. Paul, and he seems destined to earn a regular place.

Art Shires, one of the players fans always talk about—because he talks so much about himself—will play at first and his neighbor at second will be that perennial infielder, Rabbit Maranville.

Discussion was expected to center on appointment of Mrs. Dell B. Howell, Columbus, as director of education at the institution after she failed to pass the civil service examination for matron.

Mrs. Howell formerly lived in Zanesville where she taught school.

The committee expected to consider the appointment of Mrs. Rose Beatty, Cleveland, as chief matron, following her qualification by passing a civil service examination and the appointment of Mrs. John H. Berry, Athens, as assistant matron.

CROONING DYING?

CLEVELAND, O., April 6.—Crooning received another black eye today—from Walter Damrosch.

Crooning to the veteran conductor of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, who is here for the Music Supervisors' national conference is a "parody on the beautiful emotions of love, a narcotic, a half drunken way of expressing sentiment and musical notes blurred."

He believes it is killing itself.

YOUTH BOUND OVER TUESDAY; UNABLE TO PROVIDE BOND

Carl Huff, 19, Springfield, waived preliminary examination and was held to the grand jury Tuesday by Municipal Judge E. Dawson Smith on a charge of burglary and larceny under $500 bond.

Huff, one of five Springfield youths arrested after theft of clothing from a railroad section shop Saturday afternoon, escaped from McClellan Hospital between 5 and 6 a. m. Tuesday and was rearrested at his home in Springfield and returned here later the same morning.

Hospital attaches believe the robbery suspect made his getaway through a window, after taking what clothes he could find. He had saved some food from his Monday evening meal, wrapped it up in a napkin and then left it on a window sill.

Two other youths involved in the robbery, who were prosecuted on "train climbing" charges, were each fined $10 and costs by Judge Smith Wednesday, following pleas of guilty Monday. They were Harry Armstrong, 18, and Ansel Brumfield, 18.

CHILD IS INJURED
Jack Pattie, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Pattie, 8, King St., received a painful gash on his chest and left arm while playing Tuesday morning. The child fell from his tricycle against an automobile and was cut by the license plate on the car. Three stitches were required to close the wound.

Quick Way to End Constipation

Check constipation before it checks you. Here's quick and sure relief: The new saline laxative, French Lick Salts. Pleasant to take, marvelously effective. Use it in treating constipation, biliousness, headaches, gas pains, dizziness, offensive breath. Use it in cases of lassitude, insomnia, overwork, waning vigor.

French Lick Salts is a blend of the same restorative salines found in the renowned spring waters at famous French Lick Springs, combined in effervescent form. It cleanses the system by washing.

Take a little in cool water. Pleasant tasting as a fountain beverage. Acts gently, without griping. Sweeps away the toxic wastes, tones up the system, makes you feel like a new person. A wonderful systemic regulator—as good for children as for grown-ups. A marvelous aid, too, in weight reducing. Today, at your druggist's, get French Lick Salts. Generous bottle, 50c.

FEW DELINQUENTS

APPARENT HERE

If there was any general demand for the recently granted twenty-day extension of time in which to file personal property tax returns in Greene County under Ohio's new classified tax law, it so far has not become apparent to County Auditor James J. Curlett and his deputies.

The deadline date was extended from March 31 to April 20, but local taxpayers are not taking advantage of the extension, it was announced Tuesday. Within the last three days less than fifteen owners of taxable personal property have appeared at the auditor's office to make returns. Officials are wondering if taxpayers, following precedent, are waiting until April 20, the final date, in order to create a miniature last-minute rush.

2 In Memoriam

MEMOIR OF

MRS. CARLIE DAKIN

Passing away is truly a part of human existence. It shadows our enjoyment and mingles sorrow with our cup of bliss. Many of our loved ones are passing, but death is shorn of its disguise as a terror and stands forth as the radiant messenger who comes when the day's work is done, lulls us to sleep, then wakes us to the bright morning of a new day.

We go to life and not to death. From darkness to life's native sky. We go from sickness and from pain To health and immortality.

Thus we prefer to consider the passing of our dear one, Carrie Dakin. Her day's work well done, she merits this sweet repose and glorious awakening.

The only daughter of Oliver and Frances Wain Hansel, she was born in Gurneysville, Clinton County, Ohio, February 21, 1867. She had four brothers, three of whom died in childhood. The remaining one, Calvin, lives at Lumberton, Ohio.

After her marriage to J. H. Dakin, they established a home in the village of New Burlington, where they lived for more than twenty years. They then moved to a farm near Xenia and some years later to this city where they have ever since resided.

Carrie possessed a winning personality and made many friends, but home was her realm and here was her life's greatest interest. She was the mother of five children: Reva, Merrick, Ann, Mary, and Donald. She was a real mother, sympathizing with her family, sharing in their good times, their plans and their adventures. The death of the youngest son, Donald, in early manhood was a trial not easily borne.

The deceased was a member of the Friend's Church of this city (Xenia) and she lived in harmony with its teachings.

As has been said, this life was not a spectacular one and those who knew Carrie best, were most able to appreciate her.

The last weeks of her life were attended by much suffering from which the Angel of Death released her, March 11, 1932 at the age of sixty-five years.

The husband and children who remain have suffered an irreparable loss, but their memories of mother are precious gems to be treasured as long as time shall last.

O Mother dear, my love to you, Exceeds all word and song. Within my heart there ringeth true Thy love the whole day long.

Thy love outlasts all human love Thy faith endures the test, Thy love, like that above Is noblest and the best.

O Mother dear, O Mother dear, Help me thy love to show I never can pay in any way The priceless debt I owe.

A FULL PAGE OF FUN FOR ALL THE FAMILY

Lloyd Claims Record; Film Career Checkered

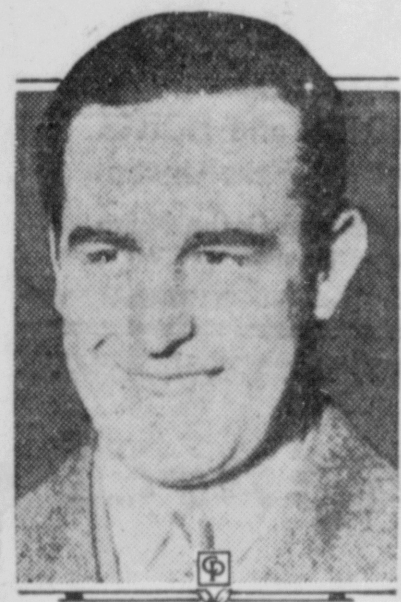

Other actors (including, perhaps, Richard Barthelmess) may talk of picture records, but with "Movie Crazy," Harold Lloyd rounds out his 350th starring vehicle.

Lloyd started making pictures in the finest delineation of gangster stories yet offered them. Walter Winchell says it puts "Little Caesar" to shame.

Hughes apparently has nothing planned for Billie Dove, who is back in Hollywood after four months in the East, during which time she was entertained by both President Hoover and Mayor Walker. It is reported she may be loaned to other producers.

Many fans may remember "Lonesome Luke." He wore a fedora hat which sat on the top of his head, a short coat, tight-fitting pants and big shoes. Two dots of a moustache, one on either side of the nostrils, was the facial make-up.

Tiring of this limited characterization, Harold discarded it and conceived the idea of the now-famous ous horn-rimmed spectacles. In this new guise he went back to one-reelers and, for several years, again turned out one picture a week.

In 1922, with "A Sailor-Made Man," he entered the feature-length field and his activities, as compared with the past, slowed down to what virtually was a walk. In the last ten years he has released only thirteen features and in the last seven, only five "Movie Crazy," his third talkie, will be the sixth.

In an attempt to fill the theaters again Hollywood is to offer unmatched cinema bargains this year. David Selznick announces that RKO will team John Barrymore and Dolores Del Rio in a modern story planned for early production.

The teaming of this famous pair is another instance of Hollywood's new largesse with famous names. The announcement also apparently disposes of a report that the three Barrymores would appear in a picture for RKO. Unless further arrangements have been made, John is only to do one more film at this studio and Lionel is also slated for but one picture there. Both Dolores and John will finish their current vehicles in two or three weeks and, in all likelihood, the new picture will follow immediately.

Howard Hughes of Caddo announces that the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures has finally approved "Scarface," his widely discussed gangster picture, and even goes so far as to praise the film for its entertainment qualities, its disclosures of racketeering and its constructive influence on public opinion. If Hughes can get his famous picture past the state censorship boards, fans may see

NEBRASKA TO HONOR ARBOR DAY FOUNDER IN GREAT CEREMONY

Plans Celebration On Anniversary Of Birthday

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., April 6.—Nebraskans, who have watched the state's transformation from an expanse of barren plains to a land of beautiful shade trees and valuable orchards, will pay tribute April 22 to the man who was largely responsible for the change.

That day will mark the sixtieth anniversary of Arbor Day, set aside for the planting of trees, and the centennial of the birth of its founder, J. Sterling Morton, Nebraska City pioneer.

Joined with residents of Nebraska City in the tribute to the man who taught the world to recognize the economic value of trees, will be persons throughout the state, the nation and in foreign lands. For Arbor Day is now recognized throughout the world.

Legal Holiday
The state will pay its tribute to Morton and his ideal through recognition of Arbor Day as a legal holiday. Several other states will do likewise.

The nation will pay tribute through issuance of a commemorative stamp. The stamp will go on sale at Nebraska City on April 22 and throughout the nation on April 23.

Arbor Day originated in Nebraska in 1872 after Morton had proposed that a day be set aside for the planting of trees. Later it was changed from April 10 to April 22, the date of Morton's birth.

Other States Copied Plan
Other states took up the idea. Seasonal days were set aside in various states as days for the planting of trees and were designated "Arbor Day." The movement now has become international.

In 1922, President Harding issued a proclamation, urging all governors to set aside this week of April 16 to 22 as a forest protection week, climaxed by the observation of April 22 as the golden anniversary of Arbor Day.

WOOL GROWERS PLAN ROUND-UP IN XENIA THURSDAY, APRIL 28

The Greene County Sheep Men's Round-Up will be held in Xenia, Thursday, April 28 according to Fred Williamson, president of the Greene County Sheep and Wool Growers' Association.

The program will begin at 9:30 a. m. with a shearing demonstration by E. S. Bartlett, expert shearer of the Chicago Flexible Shaft Co. This will be followed by a shearing contest at 10 o'clock. The contest will be divided into two divisions, one for juniors from 10 to 21 years of age and the other for seniors. Winners of both divisions, besides receiving prizes, are eligible to compete in a state champion contest at the Ohio State Fair.

Each shearer will be scored on the following points: time of shearing and tying; absence of cuts on sheep; handling of sheep; absence of second cuts in fleece; condition of fleece after shearing; time of fleece.

L. A. Kauffman will conduct a lamb carcass cutting demonstration at 11:30 showing how to cut and prepare various cuts to the best advantage.

A lamb luncheon will be served from 12 to 1 p. m.

A county wool show will be judged at 1 o'clock by J. F. Walker of the Ohio Wool Growers' Association and flock owners are urged to bring in fleeces. Following the judging Mr. Walker will hold a wool grading demonstration showing about thirty-five different classes and grades.

At 2 o'clock a representative from a livestock terminal market will hold a lamb grading demonstration showing top, good, medium and common grades.

A parasite control, posting and docking demonstration is scheduled for 2:30 p. m.

Final plans will be made at a meeting of officers and directors of the County Sheep and Wool Improvement Association Thursday evening April 10 at Xenia, O. Fred Williamson is president; Wm. Wilkerson, vice president and Homer Snively, secretary of the county association.

DAVID LEWIS ENDS LONG SERVICE TO RAILROAD

AFTER nearly forty-four years of service as an employee of the Pennsylvania Railroad, David R. Lewis, 209 E. Second St., this city, engineer, was placed on the Roll of Honor of the company April 1. He is retiring at the age of 66.

Born in Xenia November 25, 1865, Mr. Lewis attended school in this city. Upon leaving school he worked on various farms until July, 1888 when he entered the employ of the railroad here, working in the freight house until 1891, when he became a car inspector.

During 1892 he worked in the roundhouse and started firing in 1895. He was promoted to engineman September 13, 1902.

Mr. Lewis is a member of the V. R. D., Veterans' Association and Women's Aid, organizations of the railroad, and also is a member of I. O. O. F. Lodge of this city.

While he has made no definite plans for the immediate future, he is anticipating a trip to California, probably next winter, he revealed.

COURT WILL DECIDE FRAUD CHARGE SUIT

After a trial by jury was waived by mutual consent of the interested parties, Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy took under advisement Tuesday a suit for $487.50, involving an alleged fraudulent real estate transaction, brought by Ruth H. Klempatrick, Columbus, against T. Q. Long, former Xenia real estate broker, and the Glen Falls Indemnity Co., its surety.

The Columbus woman had claimed she entered into a contract August 31, 1930 to purchase a thirty-nine acre farm, situated three miles north of Xenia along the Springfield Pike, adjoining the municipal waterworks plant, from A. M. and Mary E. Lunkhart, the deal being made through the Long real estate agency. She claimed the purchase was to have been consummated March 1, 1931, but that the deal fell through and that Long failed to return $487.50 of $500 she deposited with him as a binder to be applied on the purchase price.
